Concept Note

Social Sustainability in ASEAN+3: The Challenges of Inclusive Growth

The importance of inclusive growth has become a significant part of emerging consensus on recent development discourse, as many countries have experienced economic growth process without significant improvement in income equality, poverty alleviation, and other socio-economic shortcomings.

Economic development is necessary for the improvement of quality of people's life in every country. However, for economic development to be more equitable and sustainable, the process should be accompanied by the development of social sustainability.

There is an emerging consensus that policy makers need to be more committed in addressing problems related to social sustainability. Economic growth does not automatically translate into improved social sustainability. Good and sound policy, cooperation of non-government sectors, and community and people engagement are also needed.

ASEAN+3 countries are at different stages of development with varying development needs and priorities. The different stages of development among ASEAN+3 countries create different challenges related to the development of social sustainability and the resources available to address the issue.

For example, in East Asia, Japan and South Korea have clearly achieved very impressive economic development so that they have now reached the high-income economy and developed society status. But with emerging problems like ageing population, they too need to make their future economic growth more inclusive. For some low-income ASEAN countries, they are still at the stage of struggling with their primary objective of maximizing economic growth in order to provide the material basis for poverty reduction. Other middle-income ASEAN countries have achieved remarkable economic growth; but they still have to fulfill their other development needs, including reducing their high income inequalities.

Despite the differing conditions in each ASEAN+3 country, it was observed that the policies and measures to address social sustainability in the context of inclusive growth ought to involve a whole-of-a-government or a comprehensive approach that cuts across the economic, social and political dimensions. The commitment is on each ASEAN+3 country to find the right mix of these dimensions in line with its local conditions before they could embark on the policy enhancement to maintaining and strengthening social sustainability as new ground of regional cooperation.

In consideration of the abovementioned preamble, student participants may consider some of the following challenges in preparation for the 'essay' for the Young Speakers' Contest and 'policy paper' and 'country position' for the Educational Forum that will lead to the 'Youth Joint Statement' as result of the event:

- On the economic front: How to ensure continued economic growth and at the same time help citizens obtain a fair share of economic pie? Sustaining economic growth would require constant upgrading and restructuring of the economy through ways such as promoting higher skills, encouraging innovation, raising productivity and improving infrastructure. At the same time, the government should to also introduce various schemes and incentive to help as many businesses to retain a presence in their respective countries. Assistance should also be rendered to assist citizens who may be displaced find new jobs.
- On the social front: How to develop a more inclusive society? This includes an access to quality education, better healthcare, affordable housing for elderly and vulnerable group, and tenacious social mobility in each generation, as well as prevention of a permanent underclass from forming in each society.
- On the political front: There is a need to ensure that the existing political system in the ASEAN+3 countries provides sufficient avenues for its citizens to give feedback on policies as well as allow them to express their concerns and more importantly to participate in any social sustainability related issues.

SUMMARY OF OPERATIONAL GUIDELINE

Guideline for the Educational Forum 2019

Educational Forum Topic: Social Sustainability in ASEAN+3: The Challenges of Inclusive Growth

Participating universities are requested to nominate one (1) student representative.

Prior to the Forum, participating students are requested to submit the following to the AUN Secretariat:

- 1 page Policy Paper (Individual Work) within 15 May 2019.
- Prepare 10 minutes presentation of Country Position based on individual policy papers (Group Work by Country).

What is a Policy Paper?

Policy paper is a three paragraphs essay outlining the country's policies and viewpoints about the given topic. It will serve as a roadmap on how the student representatives properly represent their respective country based on their country's actual policies and position.

What is a Presentation of Country Position?

The Country Position presentation is the country position. It will be done as a group work and the content is based on individual policy paper submitted earlier. One country will prepare ONE presentation. (i.e.: Burapha University, Chiang Mai University, Chulalongkorn University, Mahidol University, and Prince of Songkla University have to work together to present only 1 country position for Thailand).

Upon Arrival Date, participants will be given time to do final preparation to present their Country Position during Session I (Day 1)

After the registration deadline, AUN Secretariat will link the representatives of the participating universities per country. For the case of countries who only have one member university in the network (i.e. Universiti Brunei Darussalam and National University of Laos), the delegate has to write his/her country position paper by him/herself.

For the actual forum, the students will be asked to present a 10 minute Country Position that they have prepared previously as a team (one presentation per one country).

All delegates are encouraged to discuss, inquire, and comment by observing the rule of a Forum Procedure (Refer to Full Operational Guideline).

The main output of the Forum is “Youth Joint Statement”. At the end of the forum, students will come up with an ASEAN+3 Youth Joint Statement. The statement will then be submitted to the ASEAN Senior Officials Meeting on Youth (SOMY) through the ASEAN Secretariat for reference and further action. The policy paper and country position paper will be submitted together with the Youth Joint Statement to SOMY.

The forum will give recognition to the followings:

- Most Outstanding Working Group (Group)
- Most Outstanding Delegate (Individual)

IMPORTANT: The details of the parliamentary procedures, writing and format for the policy paper, dos and don'ts, awarding and judging system, and joint statement writing are all written on the Full Educational Forum Guideline.

Deadline and Submission Process:

All assignments will be submitted to AUN Secretariat within 15 May 2019.

AUN Secretariat will link the delegates by country and inform the further details with the participants after registration process.

Use of electronic devices

The delegates are encouraged to bring their laptops, ipads, and other electronic devices that will be used for research and produce outputs at the Forum such as Powerpoint Presentation and Drafting of Joint Statement.

Guideline for the Young Speakers' Contest 2019

Young Speakers' Contest Topic: Social Sustainability in ASEAN+3: The Challenges of Inclusive Growth

Participating universities are requested to nominate one (1) student representative.

Prior to the event, participating students are requested to submit the following to the AUN Secretariat:

- An individual essay reflecting the topic of not more than 1,500 words. This will be compiled and will be distributed to everyone in e-version after the end of the contest.

Deadline and Submission: Prepared essays will be submitted to the AUN Secretariat within 15 May 2019.

The Young Speakers' Contest is composed of two rounds:

- The First Round
Each student will be given 5-7 minutes (maximum of 7 minutes) to deliver prepared speech.

- The Final Round (6 Finalists)
Each finalist will be given 1 hour to prepare for a 5 minutes speech on new topic.
After the 5 minutes speech, followed by the follow up question (1 question for all) which he/she needs to respond to for another 2 minutes.

The Young Speakers' Contest (the First Round, and the Final Round) will open to public, with an aim to raise the profile of ASEAN and Plus Three countries' cooperation among the region's next generation of leaders and to deepen the awareness and understanding young people have on their region's cooperation mechanisms and their future viability.

The Contest will give the following awards:

- Winner
- 1st Runner Up
- 2nd Runner Up
- Runners Up

IMPORTANT: The detailed contest and judging procedures are written on the Full Operational Guideline.

Roles of the Faculty Members

1. Accompany and mentor the students throughout the programme.
2. At Educational Forum, the faculty members are requested to score the Most Outstanding Working Group Award.
3. At Young Speakers' Contest, the faculty members are requested to serve as Judges for the 1st round in order to select the 6 finalists for the final round.

Note: The Criteria for Judging and the Point System are both written on the attached Guideline
